Further guidance on fraud

Summary of legislation

The relevant legislation in the UK is The Fraud Act 2006.

The Fraud Act 2006 defines a general offence of fraud and sets out three ways by which fraud can be committed:

- fraud by false representation. A representation is false if it is untrue or misleading, and the person making it knows that it is, or might be, untrue or misleading.
- fraud by failing to disclose information.
- fraud by abuse of position. This applies to those occupying a position in which they are expected to safeguard, or not to act against, the financial interests of another person.

In each case, the offence is to act dishonestly with the intention of making a gain for oneself or another or causing a loss, or risk of loss, to another. The criminal act is the attempt to deceive and attempted fraud is therefore treated as seriously as accomplished fraud.

Examples of fraud relevant to the Social Carbon Foundation:

Procurement fraud:

- Staff colluding with suppliers and ordering and paying for goods or services that are not required and / or have not been delivered, or are charged at an excessive rate.
- Staff or third parties creating false invoices, receipts, purchase orders or supplier identities in order to obtain payment for goods and services that have not been supplied.
- Staff awarding a contract, or preferential terms, to a supplier in return for payments, personal discounts, commission or other benefits; or awarding a contract to a relative or other connected party.

Fraudulently altering documents or records:

- Grant recipients not spending grant funds on purposes intended, or keeping funds for personal use, and falsifying records to support false claims.
- Staff issuing false receipts to customers in order to keep the funds paid for personal use.
- Staff or third parties altering vendor payment details to divert supplier payments to own bank account.
- Staff fraudulently altering exam papers or exam results, or releasing details of exam papers in return for a bribe or in order to favour a relative.
- Staff fraudulently altering accounting records.

Expenses fraud:

- Staff claiming expenses or allowances to which they are not entitled, including by falsifying receipts.
- Staff using TEX card for personal expenses.
- Staff using Social Carbon Foundation assets, such as mobile phones, for their own personal use.
- Staff or contractors falsifying travel and subsistence or other expense claims.

Fraud involving impersonation:

- Staff or third parties impersonating the Social Carbon Foundation in order to extract fees for a service which the Council does not provide, or does not charge for.
- Staff or third parties submitting false applications from real or fictional individuals or organisation for grants.

Payroll fraud:

- Staff creating non-existent employees for directing payments.
- Staff or temporary staff making false or inflated claims for overtime or flexible working.

Further guidance on bribery

Summary of legislation

The relevant legislation in the UK is The Bribery Act 2010.

The Act makes it an offence to give or receive a bribe, ie to:

- Offer, promise or give a financial or other advantage to another person with the intention of inducing them to perform their functions improperly, or to reward them for having done so.
- Request, agree to receive or accept a financial or other advantage as the reward for an improper function or activity.

It also makes it an offence to bribe a foreign public official. A foreign public official is someone elected or appointed to a legislative, administrative or judicial position in an overseas government or other public agency or organisation. It is an offence to offer such a person a financial or other advantage with the intention of influencing them in the performance of their official duties.

The Act also creates a corporate offence of failing to prevent bribery. This means that the Social Carbon Foundation could be liable if someone offers a bribe on its behalf, including employees and third parties carrying out Social Carbon Foundation business, such as partners and suppliers. The Act applies to UK organisations operating overseas, so the Social Carbon Foundation could be prosecuted if any of its staff worldwide offer or solicit a bribe; this is why the policy applies globally.

Examples of bribes relevant to the Social Carbon Foundation:

Advantages that could be offered as part of a bribe:

- Cash, vouchers or other cash equivalents, or a “fee”.
- Gifts.
- Hospitality or entertainment (outside what would be modest and reasonable in the business context).
- The Social Carbon Foundation paying travel and accommodation costs to a third party where this is not standard business practice (eg not expenses for staff or exam invigilators).
- Social Carbon Foundation staff receiving travel or accommodation free of charge from a supplier
- Loans.
- Favourable business terms.
- Discount of services, or providing services free of charge (or ‘uninvoiced’)

- Provision of information that offers a business or personal advantage.

Offering or receiving one of the above advantages could count as a bribe if any of the following was offered or given in return:

- Award of contract to particular bidder.
- Performance of normal duties by a foreign public official.
- Altering exam paper or marks.
- Obtaining information that would put an individual or the Social Carbon Foundation at an advantage, such as the content of exam papers, or information about a competitive tender.
- Any other preferential treatment influenced by the receipt of an advantage.

The following would not usually count as bribes:

- Payment of an official charge, such as a visa
- Normal hospitality provided in the course of business, such as provision or acceptance of a modest meal at a working event.

Whether a provision of a particular item or service counts as a bribe depends upon the context and level of hospitality (etc) offered. The Bribery Act is not intended to prohibit reasonable and proportionate hospitality or business expenditure. Genuine hospitality or similar business expenditure that is reasonable and proportionate, in line with normal Social Carbon Foundation policy and practice. Judgement is required and the decision depends upon level of hospitality provided and the level of influence the person receiving it had on the business decision in question.

Further guidance on facilitation payments

A facilitation payment is making a payment or offering an advantage to a public official to undertake or speed up the performance of their normal duties. Facilitation payments are a form of bribe and are illegal under The Bribery Act 2010.

Examples of facilitation payments relevant to the Social Carbon Foundation:

- Making a payment to clear items through customs. These are not acceptable and must not be made.
- Offering a government minister exceptional hospitality (ie beyond a modest meal) whilst trying to win a contract.
- Making a 'non-official' payment to police to guard a building or provide security services.

- Social Carbon Foundation staff being offered free meals or accommodation (outside what would be modest and reasonable in the business context) in an effort to obtain favourable treatment.
- Making a payment to pass through border controls.

Exceptions

The Bribery Act recognises that there are circumstances in which individuals are left with no alternative but to make payments in order to protect against loss of life, limb or liberty, and the common law defence of duress is likely to be available.

This might apply in particular to being asked to make a payment to pass through border controls. In these circumstances, staff should follow these steps:

1. If asked for a payment, refuse. If the official insists, ask them where the requirement for a fee is displayed, and also ask for a receipt.
2. If they continue to insist, without being able to provide evidence that the fee is legitimate, ask for a supervisor and inform them that you would be prosecuted if you make this payment.
3. The Bribery Act recognises that there are circumstances in which individuals are left with no alternative but to make payments in order to protect against loss of life, limb or liberty, and the common law defence of duress is likely to be available. If you feel that refusing to pay puts you at risk of loss of life, limb or liberty make the payment and report it to as soon as possible to your manager and the Head of Counter Fraud. They will decide whether this should be reported to authorities. The fact that you have made it difficult for the official to obtain a bribe may deter them from asking others.
